

ITS2101 : Applied Calculus for IT

This course covers fundamental techniques and methods of theory of computation and calculus as applied to information technology. The course utilizes the universal language of calculus to formulate and understand practical IT problems, utilizing examples and exercises pertinent to IT applications. The student gains computational knowledge and skills that are relevant and useful to IT professionals.

Credits 4.0

Prerequisites

MAT1001

Corequisites

None