

MGT7200 : Seminar in Organizational Development and Change

Doctoral-level course focusing on topics related to organizational development and change within organizations. Topics covered include the history of organizational development, strategies for change, transforming organizations, organizational learning, implementation issues, and challenges and opportunities for organizational development. Students will develop a research proposal up to the point of data collection and will discuss how they would collect and analyze the data. This course will incorporate research concepts being covered in the second statistics for research methods course. Students will also develop resources to be used in teaching the course topics.

Credits 4.0

Prerequisites

MGT7105: Seminar in Group and Team Behavior

MGT7110: Seminar in Organizational Theory

MGT7115: Seminar in Leadership

Corequisites

None