

PAS5226 : Medical Anatomy and Physiology II Lab

Medical Anatomy and Physiology is the foundation of providing medical care to patients as a physician assistant. Through the laboratory setting, students continue to correlate anatomic and physiologic variations across the lifespan from fetal development to geriatrics.

Credits 1.0

Prerequisites

Successful completion of coursework in preceding academic quarter

Corequisites

PAS5126 Medical Anatomy and Physiology II