

PHE2001 : Introduction to Public Health

This course is designed to introduce the basic tenets, applications, and focus of public health. It will provide an introduction to public health terminology, history, core disciplines, professional roles and services, current public health challenges and the impact of public health efforts on population health.

Credits 4.0

Prerequisites

AHS1001, ENG1100, and 1 natural science course with a grade of C or better in all courses - OR -enrolled and in good standing in the RN to BSN or RN to MSN program.

Corequisites

None