PHE5020 : Biostatistical Methods

This course provides a problem-based understanding and application of parametric statistical assessments in the area of public health practice, as well as exposure to more advanced methodologies such as ANOVA, linear and multiple regression methods, and categorical response variable analysis. Students will utilize statistical software to perform basic and advanced analyses.

Credits 4.0
Prerequisites
PHE5015: Principles of Epidemiology
MAT2058: Statistics
Corequisites
None